LIBN Top Fifty Women in Business

Tori Cohen, executive director at the Long Island Alzheimer's Foundation (LIAF), has been named to the Long Island Business News "Top 50 Women in Business" for 2018. Launched in 2000, the award recognizes Long Island's top women in business, education, government and the nonprofit sector for their business savvy, influential work, mentoring and community involvement. The award was presented at a gala dinner at Crest Hollow Country Club, Woodbury, NY, on October 18th.

At LIAF, Tori is responsible for overseeing the operation of all programs and services and ensuring that they meet the needs of its participants, caregivers, donors and board of directors. With a background in social work, Tori is involved in both developing LIAF's programs from two perspectives – both as a social worker and also a business professional, managing budgeting, hiring, human resources, vendors, transportation services and insurance. Under her leadership, LIAF recently moved its headquarters from Port Washington to a larger, modern center that was more centrally located in Westbury.

Tori and her team at LIAF are committed to providing families with guidance and supportive counseling to help them get the best quality services available to them as they are firm believers that there is a life worth living after diagnosis. To that end, they have developed a number of innovative programs aimed at improving the quality of life for those living with Alzheimer's disease and related forms of dementia, as well as for caregivers. Their programs are geared for every stage of the disease which makes them unique.

Along with a variety of Day Programs that deal with all stages of Alzheimer's disease, LIAF also offers an In-Home Respite Program, a Weekend Drop-Off Program, Caregiver Support Groups and Training and Transportation Services. Tori and the LIAF team are firm believers in the importance of providing the support needed to maintain a participant's independence and well-being in the community for as long as possible and aid in the prevention of premature, costly nursing home placement.

Prior to joining LIAF, Tori worked as a senior social worker at NYU

Medical Center in New York City and a clinical social worker at Fresenius Medical Care in Boston, MA. She is a member of the National Association of Social Workers. Tori has a B.S. from Syracuse University and a Masters of Social Work from Simmons College. She is a resident of Old Bethpage, NY.
